

Claud Garner, native of Washington, county, writes in the Weatherford (Texas) Democrat about an incident that occurred there, adding, "This same thing could happen in any town."

"A stranger drove into a local filling station," says Garner (he lives in Weatherford), "and while buying gas and oil casually mentioned that two of Weatherford's most honorable citizens had been arrested for being Communists."

"This well-informed traveler went on to say that these men had their banker accompany them to Dallas to make bond for them and after three leading citizens were questioned by the F. B. I. they were all charged with being Communists. The listener soaked up the stranger's malicious lies and didn't take the trouble to verify these ungrounded statements. . . and so the rumor started and soon spread like a prairie fire."

Garner's story is timely, for we are at war. An almost identical incident occurred in Hope at the outbreak of World War II. Gossips reported that a certain local man had been arrested by the F. B. I. as a "spy." The Star nailed that one down promptly by checking with government sources.

In this democracy of ours a man is either arrested or not arrested—and if some gossip charges him with being a spy or a traitor, and there's no actual arrest to support the charge, the village gossip may get caught up with, sued for slander, and lose whatever property he or she has. We have enough bad news in wartime without idle stay-at-home inventing things.

This paragraph from the West Point (Miss.) Times Leader, newspaper of my old friend Edgar G. Harris:

"Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, announces that his country is now fully mobilized and ready to enter the war in Korea or elsewhere. All men and boys able to carry a spear have been ordered to report for instructions. Married men are ordered to bring their wives to do the cooking, and unmarried men may bring their sweethearts, if they desire. This isn't all, however, as the last line of the order reads: 'Any one found at home after the receipt of this order will be hanged.'"

Yanks Launch Attack

Sixty Seconds Spelled Death for 17 Airmen

Fairfield-Suisun, Calif., Aug. 7 (AP).—Less than 60 seconds spelled death for 17 air force men as a crippled B-29 crashed and exploded.

Both inboard engines failed as the bomb-laden Superfort took off for a long training flight Saturday midnight. The pilot tried desperately to return to the runway. But a wing scraped.

The bomber belly-landed. Minutes later its gasoline and demolition bombs exploded.

A witness said the pilot could have landed safely in less than one minute more.

The 17 known dead included 10 of the 20 men aboard.

Two others were missing and 60 or more persons were injured, some seriously. Many of the injured were Air Force personnel and their families, living in a trailer camp only 150 feet from the scene.

Bombs leveled the trailer area "like a giant had stepped on them," a witness related.

Among the dead was Brig. Gen. F. Travis, 45, much-decorated commander of the base, leader of the ninth heavy bomber wing here and hero of World War II.

He was riding behind the pilot. Both the plane commander and the pilot were among eight of the 20 men aboard who escaped alive.

They had made an emergency belly landing. The fire and explosion came several minutes later.

Seventeen bodies have been recovered. The two missing men were crew members. The four-engine aircraft crashed and exploded shortly after takeoff for a long range training mission.

The bodies of ten men who were in the plane were recovered. The other dead included three members of the base fire department and a volunteer fire fighter. Three other dead were unidentified.

Base headquarters said Capt. E. Q. Steffes, 28, of East Chicago, Ind., the plane commander, was at the controls. His injuries were listed as not serious.

Both inboard engines developed serious trouble as the wheels of the heavily laden bomber left the runway. The pilot lost the control power he couldn't raise his landing gear. This caused further drag.

He couldn't lift the plane more than 200 feet. Low hills confronted him. He tried to get back to the runway.

He almost made it—needed less than a minute more.

Students Crash Border in France

Wissambourg, France, Aug. 7 (AP).—An international group of 300 college students, calling for European unity, smashed frontier barriers at the French-German border here yesterday.

Armed with hatchets, saws and cans of gasoline, the students split into two groups and converged at the border point, uprooting the barriers and burning them in a nearby field.

As the flames rose, the green and white flag of the European movement—dedicated to European unity—was run up above the blaze.

The demonstration was held to impress delegates to the council of Europe, which is meeting in Strasbourg, some 35 miles south of here.

The council now is considering taking West German and the Saar into full partnership with western foreign ministers have voted to give them full membership in the council's upper house, the committee of foreign ministers.

Delegates from the Saar and West Germany will sit as associate members in the council's lower house, the consultative assembly, for the first time today when the assembly session opens in Strasbourg.

Two Wildcats in Nevada County Are Abandoned

In Nevada county, Lyons, Prentiss and McCord's H. S. Herding No. 1, center NE corner of N. SW 14-12-23, has been abandoned as dry in a different section of the county. W. S. Farham of Magnolia has abandoned as dry the wildcat, Grove Land and Timber Co. No. 1.

Two other wells are in process of being drilled in the Bodecaw area.

U. S. Action Not a General Offensive

Washington, Aug. 7 (AP).—The defense department cautioned today against considering the day's front-line developments in Korea as the opening of any general American offensive.

"Probably what is going on now should be called offensive action rather than a general offensive," briefing officers said.

"We do not think the time has arrived yet for U. S. and South Korean forces to roll the enemy back all along the line."

The officers said American ability to stage forays behind the Red lines is "a very healthy sign."

Briefing officers noted that the United Nations has achieved domination of both the air and the sea in the Korean theater and that the build-up of troops and equipment is proceeding without interruption from the enemy.

They took note of an increase in Allied attacks on enemy bases, boats and small ships.

"Obviously, the Reds are trying to use sea and every means to get their men and supplies to the front," officers commented.

They particularly noted carrier plane strikes on troop movements between Seoul and Inchon. The road westward from Seoul leads only to the port, signifying to military spokesmen that the Reds are stepping up their efforts to "sneak small boats around the islands" that dot the west coast of the Korean peninsula.

Jimmy Ponder, young son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Ponder, Sr., was critically injured about 1:30 p. m. yesterday when he apparently lost control of a motorcycle which he was riding and flip-flopped several times in the 1400 block on South Main Street.

He is suffering from a severe head and other injuries. Josephine Hospital attendants said this morning there was little change in his condition. He is still unconscious.

No other vehicle was involved in the accident. One person said Young Ponder apparently lost control when the cycle hit some rough road. It turned over several times dragging the youth with it.

First Case of Polio Reported for Hempstead

William L. Cook, 18, star football player for Stuttgart, Arkansas football team last season, is a victim of polio a member of his family said here today.

Young Cook who was all-conference end had been sick about a week. He is now in a Texarkana hospital polio ward and has a good chance to recover. He has lived in Hope since the end of school last spring and has a scholarship to play football at the University of Arkansas.

So far as known this is the first case of polio this season in Hempstead county.

Arkansans to Go to Polls Again Tuesday

Little Rock, Aug. 7 (AP).—Governor McMath isn't a candidate in Arkansas second Democratic primary tomorrow, but he's involved in it.

After his re-nomination by a majority vote in the July 25 preferential primary, McMath said he would take no part in races in the second primary, but reserved the right to "express myself on the election in my home county of Garland."

Saturday he issued a statement charging that "underworld elements are taking an active interest" in the Garland county campaign.

"Professional gamblers employed by gambling syndicates in Florida and elsewhere have returned to Hot Springs in recent weeks," he said. "They are not there to take the baths."

The governor's statement mentioned no names, but Circuit Judge Clyde Brown, McMath's former law partner, and Sheriff I. G. Brown, member of McMath's G. I. faction which swept into office there in 1946, are opposed. Both ran second in the preferential primary.

Curtis Ridgway, former 18th district prosecutor, who was beaten for re-election by McMath in 1946, led the ticket for circuit judge in the preferential primary to go into a runoff with Judge Brown.

Ridgway immediately issues a statement in reply to McMath, declaring:

"The opposition is becoming extremely desperate when they have to call upon a state official to take part in a local political situation, and it seems a little strange to me, coming from one who has heretofore held himself out as being opposed to dictatorship and bossism to find him x x x undertaking to tell the people of his home county how they ought to cast their ballot."

The former prosecutor also said "if any of these underworld characters that the governor refers to are now in Hot Springs, I know nothing about them," and added:

"However, if they are here, the governor as head of the state government and state police and a close political friend of the sheriff of Garland county, the circuit judge and the prosecuting attorney ought to have them picked up and put in jail."

Otherwise, interest in the secondary primary tomorrow appears to be largely local in character.

The only two state races on the ticket are those for unexpired Supreme court terms Paul Ward, Batesville, and Richard B. McCulloch, Forrest City, seek one of them, and Sam Robinson and Lefel Gentry, Little Rock, seek the other.

Races for the Supreme court rarely generate statewide interest of a magnitude of some other state races.

By JIM THOMASSEN

Little Rock, Aug. 7 (AP).—At least half the membership of the house of representatives in the 1952 Arkansas legislature will be determined in tomorrow's Democratic primary.

There will be at least 52 house seats at stake in 39 counties. Some of the races were sent into the runoff from the July 25 preferential primary, the remaining had only two candidates originally.

Twenty-seven of the house seats at stake tomorrow involve incumbents who served in the 1949 legislature (Terms of representatives are two years; those of senators four).

The 25 other races will send new members—or at least those who didn't serve in the 1949 legislature—to the 1951 house.

Several members of the 1949 house asked re-election but were casualties of the preferential primary. They include Lou Chastain, Fort Smith, author of the controversial liquor export bill; Claude C. Coffelt and Ezra Ricketts, Benton county, and Louis Watts, Monticello.

Among the 1949 members who did not seek re-election are Speaker Carl Hendrix, Horatio James A. Gipson, Benton, and four Pulaski county representatives, Max Howell, Bob Riley, Ex. Baxley and William Rector.

Races on tomorrow's ballot include: Arkansas, R. C. Wills, incumbent, Stuttgart, and Peyton Monruff, DeWitt.

Cleveland—N. S. Peek, Jr., and George N. Holmes, Rison.

Columbia—Harry B. Colay, Magnolia, incumbent, and Em-

U. S. Casualties in Korea Now Total 2,616

Washington, Aug. 7 (AP).—The army announced today that confirmed casualties of the Korean war through August 6 totaled 2,616.

Spokesmen said 153 were killed, 1,500 wounded in action and 873 missing.

"The army feels very strongly about casualty reports," the spokesman said, "because it is so close to the hearts of the American people."

It was added that the army always waits to inform families until "we are positive." A briefing officer added that the total for missing in action changes from day to day.

The total today, for instance, is 65 less than the number of missing reported from the Far East yesterday.

The army said it was not "trying to hide anything. We are trying to handle casualty notifications in a dignified and considerate way."

An officer said that the time lag in reporting casualties will decrease now that the front in Korea is "more or less stabilized."

The subject of the casualty count came up at the briefing because of a report by columnist Drew Pearson that the casualty total up to August 1 was 660 killed, 2,975 wounded and 3,000 "actually missing in action."

Pearson wrote that he had seen "the secret casualty list kept by the army surgeon general's office."

The army spokesman said in answer to question, that the totals given by Pearson "do not agree with casualty lists I have seen."

Replying to a specific question about a "secret list," the spokesman added that it is the army's adjutant general that handles casualty reports.

France Votes Armament Program

Paris, Aug. 7 (AP).—France pledged herself to a three-year rearmament program today to help guard against Communist aggression and called on Britain and the United States to station "a sufficient number of divisions" in continental Europe.

Thus she joined the vanguard of European countries, who have announced their determination to step up spending for defense, with the aid of American arms and money.

The government announcement says France will spend the equivalent of $3,710,000,000 on rearmament. It promised an immediate increase in military spending from $420,000,000 francs ($1,140,000,000) next year.

This would divert an estimated 8.2 per cent of the national income to defense costs, and the three-year program is expected to take at least 10 per cent of the total income. Britain's stepped up program will cost that much, too.

The statement said the program will give the French army 15 new divisions. It also proposed a unified command of all armies of the western world now depicting against possible Communist attack, and suggested a pool of finances and resources to make it run efficiently.

KOREA

Nothing New in Reported Robbery

Little Rock, Aug. 7 (AP).—Little Rock and Arkansas State police say there have been no developments in their investigation of the reported robbery here Saturday of six men, three of whom insisted they were not robbed.

The police report listed K. Barney Levine, Little Rock, and five others as victims of four masked men who invaded Levine's upstairs office Saturday afternoon and robbed the group of between $6,000 and $7,000 and two diamond rings.

Levine, operator of Westwood, a night club near Little Rock on the Hot Springs highway, confirmed the police report but declined to identify the other victims.

He said he and "four or five friends" were listening to the broadcast of a baseball game when "four young punks," wearing masks and sports clothes and armed with pistols, invaded the office. The victims were forced to remove their trousers, lie on the floor and then were trussed up.

Chinese Reds Fire on a British Ship

Hong Kong, Aug. 7 (AP).—Chinese Communist shore batteries fired today on the 5,000-ton British freighter Hwang-sang. Two ship's officers were wounded by fragmentation.

The shelling was about 15 miles south of Hong Kong in the same general area where five small shells were fired yesterday at the American freighter Steel Rover.

War Has No Box Seat for the Innocent Who Suffer Death, Starvation and Misery

By HAL BOYLE

With U. S. Troops in Korea, (AP)—War has no box seat for the innocent bystander.

And the tides of combat have turned the roads of South Korea into dust choked lanes of human misery and death.

As you travel up to the front you see such things as these:

A slender middle-aged woman plods along bent almost double by the weight of her mother, a toothless crone who clings to her like a small child playing piggy back.

A young lad leads by the hand a blind old man with a white beard thinned by time. . . . A naked wailing little boy trots through the line of refugees looking for his parents. . . .

An elderly couple, too feeble to walk, are being doted by a young couple as if he were dying of tuberculosis. . . . His eyes are filmed in languor and his face is as pale as though it already were lit by death's luminous candle. . . . A lame girl with a twisted foot limps after them. . . .

A mother carrying all her household belongings in a bundle on her head holds a baby to her breast and suckles him. . . . Peasant children spread their warrens on mats by the roadside. . . . Some pause by rice paddy streams and bathe their bare and swollen feet in the cool water. . . .

Worn out by the stone rutted roads. . . . Still others like log-still in exhausted slumber. . . .

Over the straggling figures rise storms of yellow dust stirred up by the churning wheels of military vehicles. The refugees clog traffic. Motor horns honk impatiently. Worried truck drivers shout curses. But the refugees move out of the way slowly. They are in no hurry because most of them do not know where they are going anyway.

Many have no homes to go back to. Their villages have been burned by artillery fire, strafing plane attacks, or razed by withdrawing American troops to keep them from becoming hiding places for enemy vehicles. The Reds have a habit of driving their tanks through the clay walls of villages but using the thatched roof as camouflage.

The refugees neither weep nor complain. Nor does one family ask or expect help from another. Their expression is as stoic and blank as that often worn by infantrymen too long in the line—a dumb acceptance of suffering and an indifference to it because their world has no horizon beyond pain.

Only as you hear the front you self do you see fear. Here is panic in the eyes of women and children who flee peaceful homes under the thunder of strange guns. Some wander aimlessly toward the battlelines to keep these lines clear. South Korean police order the refugees to follow the stream beds back or take paths through the hills.

After days and days of driving back and forth through its shifting, restless, endless sea of human suffering your mind becomes numb to the sight of thousands of individual atoms that compose it. You feel sorry for them all but there are so many that only a few cases leave a sore spot in your heart.

I remember two. Crossing a bridge I saw a man in a tattered white rag crawling on hands and knees across the dry stone studded creek bed below. He held up a pleading arm to a group of refugees but they turned their eyes away and walked on.

And I guess that is what I did too. Coming home at twilight, I leaped a solitary bearded old man guiding his way down a mountain path by tapping the ditch edge with his cane. He turned his sightless eyes toward us for a moment and then his cane began tapping again. We turned a bend and we were gone.

But all the rest of the way I had a feeling that the blind old man was all humanity himself—a lone refugee fumbling downhill in darkness, stone by stone through a world whose real brightness was shut forever from his eyes.

Resistance Is Shubborn But Advance Made

Tokyo, Tuesday, Aug. 7 (AP).—American planes that were blamed for an attack on a village in Korea Monday in their offensive of the day.

The three-pronged attack which began Monday morning today in a "showdown" battle against a withering wall of North Korean artillery was a tactical success.

A bottleneck that blocked the advance of the American forces was broken.

Official sources at the state AP Correspondent Tom Lambert said that earlier today in that area now had been broken out and the American attack proceeding.

The blockade had occurred when Red artillery knocked out the tank, blocking the only route. Lambert reported that many had suffered their first casualties of the war but gave no details.

He said both the marines and the army's fifth regiment, but team from Hawaii, had made four-mile advances in some places.

One battalion of the 1st Marine combat team, which was sent to the area, had relieved it. They were pushing ammunition and food by air.

No late reports were given on the third element of the offensive. The advance of the 30th Infantry division.

"Tokyo, Aug. 7 (AP).—U. S. planes and army infantry cracked out on a North Korean front today and rolled back Red troops back nearly two miles in southeastern Korea."

It was the first American offensive after five bitter weeks of defensive retreat.

About 8,000 Americans and South Korean commandos were thrown into the attack.

They claimed head-on with crack North Korean soldiers. It is backed by the Red First Division. The two total around 8,000 men.

As the big push started, W. Averell Harriman, special envoy affair to President Truman, visited a front line command post in Korea.

On his return to Tokyo, Harriman said he had found American military leaders and South Korean officials "very cheerful and optimistic."

The offensive had been in way only a short time when 29, some of them less than 24 days out of the United States, plastered Pyongyang, North Korean capital, and the industrial city of Wonsan with 400 tons of bombs. This was the biggest air blow dealt thus far by the U. S. in the Korean war.

In the latest official statement Monday on the new attack, a U. S. Eighth Air Force spokesman, released at 8:30 a. m. (EST), said:

"The attack launched today by the 35th division and marine brigade advanced 3,000 yards today on a broad front. Resistance was met by U. S. forces inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy."

The Reds, getting ready to thrust of their own toward the 35 miles east of the Korean border for the United Nations drive the American light tank back.

On the northern front, the Communists began a new attack south of Wonsan. The night air communication dials, Allied South Koreans were engaged in fighting there.

The big American push into two North Korean divisions the rugged coastal counties of the southern sector. The attack made from the village of 35 air miles west of Pusan, main U. S. seaport on the eastern tip of the peninsula.

The blow was aimed at the army's 35th and 7th Marine combat teams, the first marine division sent to South Korea command the United Nations attack.

North Koreans Knew A.I.U.S. Movements

By PETER KALISCHER

On Southern Front near Masan, Korea, Aug. 7 (UP)—The Communists threw a monkey wrench into the machinery of the first American offensive in Korea and trouble began before the drive was well under way.

The break against the American offensive from uncanmy Communist intelligence or bad luck or both.

It was a closely synchronized piece of business at best. The 1,400-foot hills dominating the right flank of the offensive was transferred from elements of the Fifth Regimental Combat Team to the marines.

BATTERIES FOR ALL MAKES HEARING AIDS

A. L. Burns, Jr.—816 Texarkana Nat'l Bank Bldg.

While it was being done, a small group of North Koreans slipped in between the American forces, and drove them off the hills. The day was in the hands of the Communists, who were taking a busman's holiday on the front line.

The men in one command post crouched behind a 50-foot bluff shielding the Americans from the enemy fire while shells exploded 25 yards distant. Dirt and shrapnel showered the men, who could see the Communists' fire scoring on another command post half a mile to the east.

The fifth regiment tried valiantly to live up to its motto, "I'll try, sir," which dates back to the Battle of Lundy's Lane in the war of 1812.

It was plain that the battle was going badly.

"We will lose unless you take that hill," the commanding general told a colonel. "Can you take it?"

"I will try, sir," the colonel replied, and did.

The Fifth was trying hard today. It rode most of the night in a three-mile-long convoy to the front. The trucks showed dim lights at 40-yard intervals. The Communists may have seen it, and that may have been their tip-off on what was happening, enabling them to sneak in the small band that played hob with the American plans.

High on the list of mishaps was the ripping out of almost all communications lines to the rear and to supporting units. The tanks lumbering down the road did the damage, unwittingly, of course.

During the shelling of an advance command post, Pvt. Richard Bartlow of Myrtle Point, Ore., was asked what he thought of the whole show.

"It damned near got me," he said just after a shell had burst a few feet from his machine gun.

"But the way I figure it, the guys before me fought and now it's my turn to fight."

CARBON KILL

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

by Julius Long

FRANK PHAJOL was fat, but he had a solid look. I figured him for about 270 pounds on a five-eight frame. His face was broad and heavy-jawed. There was a crass, blunt look in his dark eyes and the coarse hair on his head was still coal black, though he was at least 45.

"Sit down, Mr. Dorsam," he said, pointing to a deep lounge chair as I entered his hotel suite.

He had spoken in the grand manner as if his business were big and very important.

"I know a lot about you, Mr. Dorsam," said Phajol. "I even know all about your health."

"It's fine, thanks."

"You came to Arizona for your asthma, direct from the Cincinnati police force, where you were a captain of detectives. You had to give up a fine job because of your health, didn't you?"

"I gave up a good job, but my health is fine now. In Arizona I'm as good a man as anybody."

"I'm sure of that," Phajol ran chubby fingers through his hair. "That's why I sent for you. I need the best man available, Mr. Dorsam."

"Let's cut out the formalities. Call me Del—that's the nickname everybody who knows me uses."

"All right, Del. You can call me Frank."

I knew that I should never be able to call him Frank, and I regretted bringing up the nickname stuff. He went on:

"I will need you for not more than two days, beginning at noon today. It might possibly take three days, but I don't think so. I will pay you $100 a day."

Since I'd opened a private agency in Tucson I'd been lucky to rate twenty-five and expenses.

"What kind of a job is it?"

"A bodyguard job. I'm taking some valuable carbon down to Copper City."

"This is rather short notice, Mr. Phajol. It's 11 now."

He shrugged. "I can't afford to take any chances, Del. I didn't think it wise to go into details too long in advance. I hope you understand."

"I think so. How much stuff are you taking to Copper City?"

"Twenty-five thousand carats."

I whistled. "All carbon?"

"No; it's half and half. Actually a few more balts than carbons. Now you know why I need a good man."

I LIGHTED a cigaret and said: "Of course the stuff's insured."

Phajol leaned forward in his chair.

"Mr. Dorsam—Del, I am sure that you are not altogether uninformed about me and the way I have conducted my business."

"You've been selling commercial diamonds in the Southwest for 10 years. You deal with small miners and contractors. You probably never carried more than 1000 carats on you in your life. That's why I can't understand the 25,000 carat deal."

Phajol shrugged slightly. "I will explain that. As you have rightly stated, I have been a small-time peddler of commercial diamonds. Until now I have never had a chance to make a really significant sale to a really important driller. That's why this thing is all-important to me."

That luscious brown, wavy hair certainly had not come from the coarse-grained Frank Phajol.

I kept wondering what quirk of fate had given him this opportunity to sell to a reputable drilling contractor. No big driller would deal with him. Smaller drillers and miners would, for their investment didn't warrant their making an investigation of Phajol's carbons and balts.

"I know what you've heard about me," said Phajol. "You've heard my diamonds are hot. Think, man

—if I'd been selling hot stones for 10 years, wouldn't I have been caught?"

IT did seem reasonable that he would have been picked up. Several times he had been investigated by insurance companies after disappearances of diamonds in New York houses. But none of his stuff had ever been identified as stolen. The experts can tell whether stones come from one lot or another.

Yet Phajol had found a market for his product for 10 years, and nobody had ever been able to identify a single stone as stolen property. And he had always been able to produce a bill from some commercial diamond house either in New York or Holland.

"There is one thing that you definitely need not worry about. The stuff I'm taking to Copper City is legit. I can show you the bill," he was telling me now.

He could have forged a bill that would fool me, so I said: "I'm interested only in why you're carrying a fortune in commercial diamonds to Copper City when you could just as easily sell by sample."

"Mike Dominico insists that I bring the entire stock. I can't afford not to. It's the first time Dominico ever gave me a tumble. I've got to make the sale. If I do, then I can make others to men like Dominico. It means everything to me."

He lowered his voice and leaned still closer. "I told you I would pay you a hundred a day. If I make this sale there will be a fat bonus in it for you—I can guarantee that!"

I was wondering why Mike Dominico had ever decided to even consider buying diamonds from Phajol. He had started out as a small-time driller. Then he had raked $1000 together and decided to take a flier on the market. He had phoned an order for $1000 fighting had begun. Telegraph and telephone communications went down at about the same time.

It is believed here communications were stopped when workers abandoned the transmitting stations in Macassar to get out of the line of fire.

In view of the turn of events, the Jakarta government has suspended commercial air travel to Macassar.

Rebels Start Fighting in Indonesia

Jakarta, U.S.I., Aug. 7 (AP). — Top Dutch and Indonesian commanders hastened to strife-torn Macassar today in an effort to check bloody fighting which has broken out there between federal troops and Indonesian soldiers awaiting discharge from the Dutch army.

The Dutch military commander in Indonesia, Maj. Gen. Scheffelaar, and the commander of federal forces fighting rebels in Ambona, Col. Kawilarang, flew to the troubled East Indonesian capital this morning to try to restore peace.

The cause of the outbreak was not announced, but Macassar was the scene last April of an abortive rebellion by Indonesians in the Dutch army. They seized the city when the central government sent troops to garrison the city. That revolt collapsed after its leaders surrendered to the federal government.

Indonesian defense Minister Sultan Hamengku Buwono conferred on the crisis with President Soekarno and Premier Mohamed Hatta.

The sultan told reporters later that the situation in Macassar is confused and that army communications with the southwestern Celebes part are still cut off. He said there had been some deaths, but that accurate figures were not available.

Radio Macassar suddenly went off the air yesterday after the

Miss Virginia King
Becomes Bride of Henry P. Robertson, Jr.

In a beautiful ceremony Saturday evening in the First Presbyterian church, Fifth and Main streets, in Texarkana Miss Virginia Belle King daughter of Mrs. Melvin M. King, Sr., became the bride of Henry Perry Robertson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Perry Robertson of Hope, Ark.

The Rev. Dan Goldsmith officiated at the double ring ceremony. The church was decorated with tall baskets of white gladioli against a background of greenery and seven-branched candelabra.

Mrs. James Watlington, organist, furnished the nuptial music, and Joe Garrison was soloist.

The bride's only attendant was Mrs. Oscar Tate, sister of the bridegroom. She wore a gown of Nile green starched chiffon over matching taffeta. It was fashioned with a fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline and full skirt. She wore a bandeau of yellow split gladioli and carried a colonial bouquet of the same flowers with tulle.

Fred Robertson of Hope attended his brother as best man, and Gibson Robertson, brother of the bridegroom, and William J. B. King, cousin of the bride, served as ushers.

Mrs. King chose for her daughter's wedding a navy dress with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

The mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Robertson, wore a navy costume with navy accessories, with a corsage of white carnations.

The bride was lovely in a white Chantilly lace gown with a short train, the dress fashioned with a high neckline with small collar and tiny covered buttons down the front of the fitted bodice. The long sleeves tapered to petal points over her hands. Her finger-tip length veil of illusion was held by a half-hat of lace. She carried a white orchid surrounded by white satin streamers tied in love knots, ornamenting a white Bible. The Bible was a gift of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Dean, 2623 State Line.

Assisting at the reception were Miss Claude King, aunt of the bride who presided over the punch bowl, and Miss Martha Sanders, cousin of the bride, who served wedding cake. Mrs. Fred Robertson registered the guests.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of white maroon daisies, feverfew, and pale green satin ribbon. At one end of the table was a punch bowl, at the other was the tiered wedding cake embossed with pale pink roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Robertson chose a white silk linen dressmaker suit with navy accessories and an orchid corsage for traveling. The couple will live in Hope, upon their return.

The bride is the daughter of the late Melvin Moore King and granddaughter of the late Edward L. King of Texarkana.

Following the rehearsal Thursday night, Bill King entertained the wedding party with a buffet supper at his home on Richmond Road.

DOROTHY DIX

No Partnership

Dear Miss Dix: I continued on with my job when I married, so I have been self-supporting, and have helped my husband. But my husband refuses to confide in me anything whatsoever that has to do with money. His income he claims I shall never learn from him. I know that he is in financial difficulties, but what these are I have no idea, as he thinks that a man's business affairs are none of his wife's concern. All of this hurts me dreadfully, as I had thought that married life was a partnership.

I am trying to make the best of the situation, which also involves childlessness as he does not want a family because of the expense of the upkeep, although I offered to finance a baby myself. What about it?

A CONSTANT FOLLOWER

Answer: Not much. A husband with as tight a fist over his money as, and as dumb a tongue, would need to possess every other charm and grace of body and mind to offset these drawbacks. I doubt if he has these. So, as you have to earn your own living and he doesn't even regard you as a confidential friend he can trust, it seems to me that you are getting a thin deal out of matrimony.

Outmoded Notion

This notion that women don't know anything about financial matters, can't understand them and are not to be trusted with money, anyway, is a quaint conceit that is laughable enough in these days when women are following every gainful occupation. Certainly your husband, of all men, seeing that you appear to be a better businesswoman than he is, should not consider you unworthy to be told anything concerning his money affairs.

Nearly all women are anxious to get along in the world. If their husbands will talk over their plans with them, and make them see how, by economizing, they can enlarge the factory or fix up the store they will gladly pinch pennies to put into the enterprise.

Furthermore many women have showed financial judgment and their husbands lost much money when they lose their advice. Many a wife's lunch has made her husband's fortune.

But a lot of men are funny about money. They will trust their wives with their happiness, their names and their honor, but not their pocketbooks.

Dear Dorothy Dix: We are always hearing about Patient Griselda. Please tell us just how patient Griselda was.

Answer: Griselda was as patient as the girl who lets a boy monopolize her society for years and years, who lets him camp on her parlor chairs and tell her his troubles; who comforts him when he is blue who feeds him on her mother's Sunday dinners and who waits and waits and waits for him to pop the question.

She was as patient as the girl who thinks that the boy friend who blows hot and cold, who takes her up and puts her down, loves her, although he never mentions the subject and that she can make the dumb speak if she will just hold on and be humble long enough.

She was as patient as the women who believe that the men who have tired of them and cast them aside will come back to them, and that there is something they can do to rekindle the ashes of the dead fires of passion.

She was as patient as the wives who forgive unfaithful husbands and take them back again. She was as patient as the millions of mother who walk the colic at night with crying babies; who lead toddling little feet along hard ways; who sacrifice themselves to educate their children and whose whole lives are offered up on the altar of their families.

She was as patient as every woman is who loves and who, loving, hopes all things and believes all things and forgives all things.

They say that Patient Griselda left no descendants. That is a mistake. The world is full of them.

Dear Miss Dix: I am the mother of seven children. They all love and obey me as much as can be expected except one son. He is 18 and gives us a great deal of worry by staying out until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning and sometime later, associating with very bad company. I have tried everything from kind, motherly persuasion to force to keep him away from this group of rowdies, but without avail. There is no reason for this as he has a comfortable home and a good father who is a good provider. What is your advice?

MOTHER

Answer: Send him off to some good, strict military school where he will be under discipline. That will break up the association. If you cannot afford to do this; why not get him to enlist in one of the services? They do not want boys of bad character, but your son is as yet only a wild restless youth who craves adventure, and who would find it and also be taught a good trade.

Intelligence Setup Change to Be Aired

Washington, Aug. 7 — (AP)—Two senators who cited evidence of what they called faulty military intelligence said today there may be a need for some broad changes in the intelligence setup.

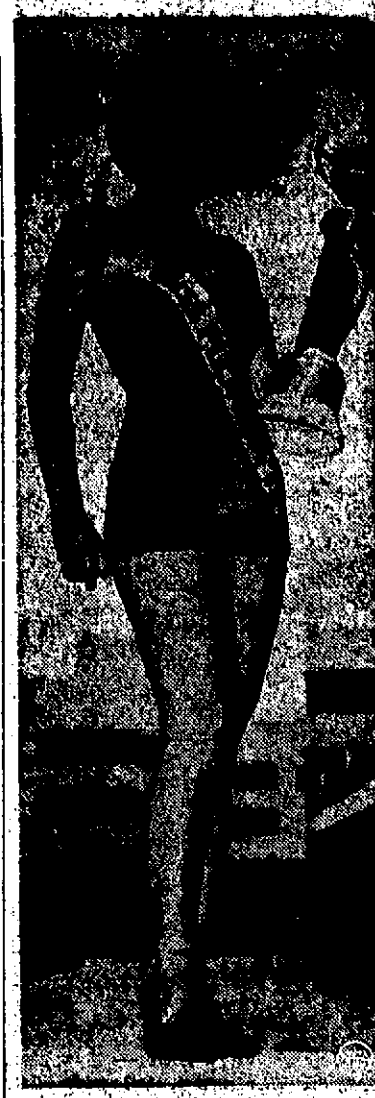

Senator Bridges (R-NH) told a reporter he thinks all the available information shows that the country was caught napping by the Communist invasion of South Korea. He said he will suggest that a senate armed services investigating subcommittee of which he is a member look into intelligence operations with a view to suggesting changes.

Senator Byrd (D-Va), like Bridges a member of the full armed services committee, said events of the last few weeks have indicated to him that some drastic revisions in military espionage operations ought to be undertaken.

"The whole intelligence setup probably ought to be reorganized on a war basis," he said in a separate interview.

Bridges said he hopes intelligence reports from other parts of the world are evaluated more effectively than were those from Korea.

The senate appropriations committee inquired briefly into the nature of intelligence reports from Korea a few days after the Communist invasion. Rear Admiral R. H. Hillemeier, director of the central intelligence agency, said then his agency has reports dating back a full year to show that North Korea was massing troops and equipment along

Harry Bridges to Seek His Release

San Francisco, Aug. 7 — (AP)—Harry Bridges' lawyers will seek his release from jail today on a writ of habeas corpus.

The President of the CIO Longshoremen's union was taken into custody Saturday after federal Judge George Harris revoked Bridges' $25,000 bail.

Counsel for the labor leader said they would ask the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for a writ of habeas corpus. They also said they would appeal to a higher court for his release on bail, contending that Harris went beyond legal precedents in ordering Bridges imprisoned.

Harris held Bridges to be a menace to national security, and granted the department of justice petition for cancellation of bail. The court termed Bridges' "probably one of the most cogent figures in the Communist party in America today," adding:

"As such his allegiance cannot be to the United States of America. His conduct since the beginning of the Korean crisis and the border

But Hillemeier said his agency merely passed these reports on to other government departments without evaluating them.

Byrd said he is particularly disturbed because American military leaders apparently thought the North Koreans had committed most of their troops to the fighting 16 days ago but now find that additional Communist reserves have been poured into the battle.

Without referring to intelligence reports, Senator Tydings (D-Md) said in a week-end radio broadcast that top military leaders are confident, despite the evident ability of the North Koreans to concentrate more and more troops, that Communist advances in Korea have been slowed down.

Bold Action Needed Says U.N. Chief

Lake Success, Aug. 7 — (AP)—Trygve Lie says a bold and enlightened act of statesmanship is needed to meet the threat of a Third World War.

The United Nations secretary general gave his views in his 143-page annual report to the general assembly, which meets at Flushing Meadows, N. Y. Sept. 15.

In the report, written July 12, Lie said there was no way of foreseeing the outcome of the war in Korea. He said the breach of peace in Korea interrupted his efforts to get high-level officials of the big powers to resume negotiations.

Need for negotiations, however, will be greater than ever "when United Nations action has succeeded in restoring peace to Korea," Lie wrote.

"I do not believe that member states adhering to the charter can ever accept the doctrine of irreconcilable and irreversible divisions of the world into warring camps; not so long as the least possibility exists of preventing a Third World War by a peace full settlements based on the principles of the charter."

"But I also believe it will take nothing less than a bold and enlightened act of statesmanship to bring about a resumption of negotiations and to halt further deterioration towards another world war."

The report termed a successful conclusion to the U. N. military action in Korea "first priority" for member nations but added:

"This does not mean, however, that either the member governments, or I as secretary-general, should abandon efforts for peace by negotiation, conciliation and mediation."

Lie's report was distributed among the 59 member delegations as the security council prepared to take up again tomorrow the Soviet union's demand to withdraw Communist North Korean troops. Lie said the council had debate on the Korean issue.

Giants Seem to Be Hitting Their Stride

By RALPH RODEN Associated Press Sports Writer

Look out The Giants are coming.

While Philadelphia, Boston, Brooklyn and St. Louis have been battling in vain to take a commanding lead in the National League pennant scrap, Manager Leo Durocher's New York Giants have been moving up unobtrusively on the outside.

The Giants have won 15 out of their last 16 games. Only a 6-3 defeat by the Cards on July 30, which interrupted a nine-game winning streak, mars the surge.

Yesterday the Giants reached the peak of their current drive as Larry Jansen and Sal Maglie turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-0 and 3-0.

Jansen gave up only five hits, walked none and fanned seven in posting his 13th victory and fourth shutout.

The Giants cuffed Bill Werle for ten losses including home runs by Monte Irvin and Whitey Lockman.

Maglie scattered seven singles, walked four and struck out seven in hanging up his ninth win in the finale. Bob Thomson sealed Murray Dickson's 13th loss by whacking a two-run homer in the seventh.

Meanwhile, the Cardinals checked their downward plunge and tightened up the race by taking a doubleheader from the Phils, 7-1 and 2-0. The Cards had lost seven out of nine games and dropped 6 1-2 games behind before righting themselves.

Rookie Cloyd Boyer pitched a four-hitter to win the opener, his third straight victory.

Veteran Lefthander Max Lanier tamed the Phils on six hits in the finale while the Cards collected only three off Bubba Church.

However, the Red Birds bunched two of their hits along with an error to score twice in the fourth inning.

The second place Boston Braves advanced to within three games of the Phils by winning with Chicago's C. Johnny Sain pitched five shutouts to a 5-2 decision in the opener, his 16th victory of the year, top output in the National League. The Cubs took the lead by beating the six-hit pitcher 2-0 in Frank Miller.

Brooklyn missed an opportunity to pick up a big chunk of ground by losing an 11-7 game to the Cincinnati Reds. The Reds maulled four Dodgers' pitchers, starting with Ralph Branca, for 16 hits. Ewell Blackwell went all the way to square his record at 11-1.

Old Dizzy Trout pitched the American League's front-running Detroit Tigers to a 4-0 seven-hit victory over the Washington Senators. The conquest boosted the Bengals' margin to three games over the New York Yankees, who regained second place from Cleveland by beating the Indians, 9-0 on Tommy Byrne's three hitler.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

By GAYLE TALBOT (For Hugh Fullerton Jr.)

New York, Aug. 7 (AP) — Add Manager Billy Meyer of the Pittsburgh Pirates to the growing crop of experts who look for the vigorous young Philles to win out in the National League.

It is obvious to one and all that Billy's own club, mired in last place, isn't going anywhere this year, so he is in position to speak freely.

"It's going to be a scramble," he mused as he tenderly massaged a gouty foot in his hotel room. "but the others are going to find those kids mighty tough to ward the end. They've got the spirit and rebound that wins pennants."

"Last time they were out our way they were in trouble. They had just run into a mess of doubleheaders and they were ready to be taken. Maybe if we had been a real good club we would have swept the four. But they just kept plugging and sneaked out of town with an even break."

"They've got those great young pitchers and they've got that long ball that'll kill you. You don't know which one's going to knock it out of the park on you next. Del Ennis is their best man right now and he's getting better."

"Before this year Del used to hit at a lot of bad balls, but he's quit it. Last time we played them he made our pitchers come in there with the good ones and he murdered us. Ennis and that relief pitcher of theirs, Jim Konstanty, are going to make an awful lot of difference."

What impresses Billy most about the whiz kids' young pitchers — Robin Roberts, Bob Miller and Ken Church — is that they are smart enough at a tender age to depend upon their fast balls and what baseball men call the "big curve" to win. They haven't yet been polluted with a lot of thick stuff.

"A fast ball, curve and change-up are a good pitcher's needs," Meyer emphasized. "They are the foundation of good pitching. But now both leagues are loaded up with fellows who try to throw five or six different pitches, including the slider, of course."

"That slider is the worst of all. It's what I call the alibi pitch. Anytime a pitcher gets tagged good he says it was a slider that the batter just happened to get hold of. But they all like to throw it."

The reason for all the trick pitching — the experimenting — is that there are an uncommon number of elderly chumpers around today, Billy believes. Fellows approaching their mid-thirties are trying to get by with an assortment of stuff. He thinks that the big leagues still are feeling a shortage of young pitchers because of the last war.

That is, Billy qualifies, all teams are feeling the pinch except the Phils. Outside that club, the only young pitcher who appears to have made a big impression on him this season is Erv Palica of the Dodgers. He calls Palica a "really fine pitcher with a world of stuff."

The Pirates' failure to do better than they have is a bitter disappointment to their manager. He finds it difficult to explain promising players who "tightened up" game after game lost which should have been won.

"It's too bad," he said wearily, "because our fans have been wonderful to us. They're the best."

Flyers Blast Hope by 13-3 Margin

The Mineral Springs Flyers blasted two Hope hurlers for a 13-3 win over the Hope Legionnaires and Ray Hoesy's fourth win against seven losses at Mineral Springs yesterday afternoon.

Hoesy was flinging one of his best outings of the year yesterday although he struck out only 2 and walked 6. He had men on base against him in every inning with the exception of the third and ninth. However the lefthander was superb in the clutches, concentrating on control pitching. He was also backed by some fancy playing by the Flyers behind him. The Mineral Springs defenders miscued only once.

With Beasley on third and White on second Roy Taylor banged a long double to left center to drive across the first two Hope runs. Hoesy racked their third tallie in the seventh on four straight singles.

Yank Tryouts Start Today at Fair Park

The New York Yankees will conduct a baseball tryout at Fair Park starting today at 10 a. m. and will continue through Wednesday, August 9.

All boys between the ages of 16-21 years who are interested in a professional baseball career are urged to attend. Prospects should report to the field while the camp is in session with glove, shoes and uniform.

Any youth signed to a contract will be reimbursed for expenses in coming to Hope for the tryout.

Tonight at 8:15 the Legionnaires will play the Red River Tomcats of Texarkana in a non-league go. Tuesday night the Hope nine resumes loop play at Spring Hill, La., and Friday night the Louisiana team comes to Hope.

The Flyers wasted no time in marring his three wins and no losses record. Five hits, two errors, and two bases on balls netted seven runs and a big send off lead for Ray Hoesy. The Flyers garnered single runs in the second and seventh. In the fifth three consecutive errors loaded the bases and Louis Carpenter slammed a grand slam homer over the left field barrier.

Legion Field tonight at 8:00.

Singletary Good for Crop

the cheapest and most satisfactory way to improve pastures is the use of legume cover crops. According to John Keck, assistant state soil conservation peas are rapidly gaining popularity with farmers as a plant cover crop. Not only is it a good builder, it planted early in the fall, it grows well in winter and early spring. Yields of 800 to 1,000 bushels per acre are not unusual. The peas can be grazed in the late winter and early spring. Grazing should be deferred early enough to allow seedling and to avoid possible toxic effect of the seed on livestock where reseeding is permitted only the planting will normally be required on the piece of land. Due to the relatively high percent of hard seed, Singletary peas have been known to come for three years from the same planting. If scarified seed are used, nearly 100 percent germination can be expected the first year.

The usual practice when using Singletary peas for grazing and pasture improvement is to plant the seed on the bare grass with a seed drill, or cover by discing in. The seed should be planted in August or early September. The peas are compatible with most pasture grasses and grows well with them. Being a legume the peas add nitrogen to the soil which in turn stimulates the growth of the grasses.

Negro Killed, Another Hurt at Texarkana

Texarkana, Aug. 7 — (AP) — A Negro was killed and another man severely wounded Saturday night in what Sheriff W. E. Davis said was a sudden knife attack by a companion.

Davis said James W. Kimbrell, 25, of Los Prairie, small community 21 miles east of here, is in jail without formal charge in connection with the fatal stabbing of Elce Williams, 33, Negro of Los Prairie. The sheriff said W. E. Townsend, 45, Texarkana, and Roy Castleman, 45, told him the group had just gotten out of a car at Lost Prairie when Kimbrell drew a knife, slashed Townsend on the arm, stabbed Williams near the heart and again turned on Townsend, who felled him with a blow with his fist.

Stands of Singletary peas may be disappointing the first year, but will usually thicken thereafter if seed are allowed to mature. Like most other crops, the better the land the better the growth of peas. They respond well to fertilizer, especially phosphate.

Specific fertilizer requirements can be known only after a soils test is made on the land to be planted. This service is available to farmers through the Soil Conservation Service or the Extension Service.

Singletary peas will do well on most of the soils in Hempstead County, with the exception of the deep sands. They will stand a moderate amount of wetness and overflows of short duration.

Seed production offers real possibilities as a cash crop to farmers of this area. Especially at this time, when landowners and operators are looking for new crops to take up the surplus acreage created from production controls.

Farmers are urged to give serious consideration to Singletary peas for seed production and in their pasture improvement program, Mr. Keck concluded.

About 500 map "quadrangles" covering a fourth or an eighth of a degree each way are completed by the U.S. Geological Survey each year.

Breakdown of Pay for Men in Service

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Aug. 7 — (AP) — This is an explanation of the pay and allowances men in the armed services get.

The army will be used as an example. Comparable grades in the other branches get the same.

Above the grade of private, there's no flat pay scale. The pay then ranges from a minimum to a maximum, depending on length of service.

There are three groups in the army:

1. The non-commissioned men: From recruit — the draftee or the volunteer without previous experience — to master sergeant.

2. Warrant officers: A special group in between the non-commissioned men and the commissioned officers. Warrant officers no administrative work or are technical specialists.

3. Commissioned officers: From the lowest, second lieutenant, to full general.

Take the monthly pay of the non-commissioned men first—

Recruit, $75; recruit after four months, $80; private, $82.50 to $120; private first class, $95.55 to $147; corporal, $117.60 to $191; sergeant, $139.65 to $227; sergeant first class, $169.65 to $249; master sergeant, $198.45 to $294.

Warrant officers' pay—

Warrant officer first grade one, $210.08 to $289.28; grade two, $249.20 to $349.20; grade three, $291 to $392.85; grade four, $320.10 to $465.60.

Commissioned officers pay —

CORRECTION

A statement appeared in the Hope Star, Friday, August 4, 1950 purportedly signed by me. I did not write the statement, dictate the article, nor authorize the use of my name in the endorsement of any candidate in the election to be held on August 8.

In addition the article stated that I paid for the political advertisement and am chairman of a committee supporting a certain candidate. I have not paid for any advertising and am not chairman of any such committee.

THE WHOLE TRUTH

In Saturday's paper my opponent quoted in part from the written announcement of my candidacy which appeared in the paper on Feb. 23. He selected one sentence from a paragraph and quoted only that sentence, his purpose being to lead the people to believe that I made a promise four years ago that if elected I only wanted to serve four years.

In order that the people may have the whole truth I quote the ENTIRE paragraph:

"When I ran for my first term, it was my personal desire to serve four years in this office and I so expressed myself. During the past few months I have had such a number of people to solicit me to run again that I feel the majority of the people desire that I continue in this office for another term. For that reason I have decided to seek re-election and it will be a pleasure to again serve you if you see fit to honor me with this high trust."

Also, in his ad of last Saturday my opponent says: "What we all need to do is to clean up the vice and corruption that abounds all over our Country. Clean up the bootlegging and whiskey joints that are making these evil spirits available to our youth and adults."

In this connection my I say that the people of this County have done business with Claud Sutton for 25 years. They know that in his private life and in his business life he has always been against vice, corruption, bootlegging and whiskey joints. These matters constitute a problem with which the Sheriff and the following other officials are charged with doing their utmost to keep down:

Circuit Court
Grand Jury
Prosecuting Attorney
FBI and Alcohol Tax Division
State Undercover Men
State Police Force
City Police Force (Of which my opponent has been a member for some 9 years)

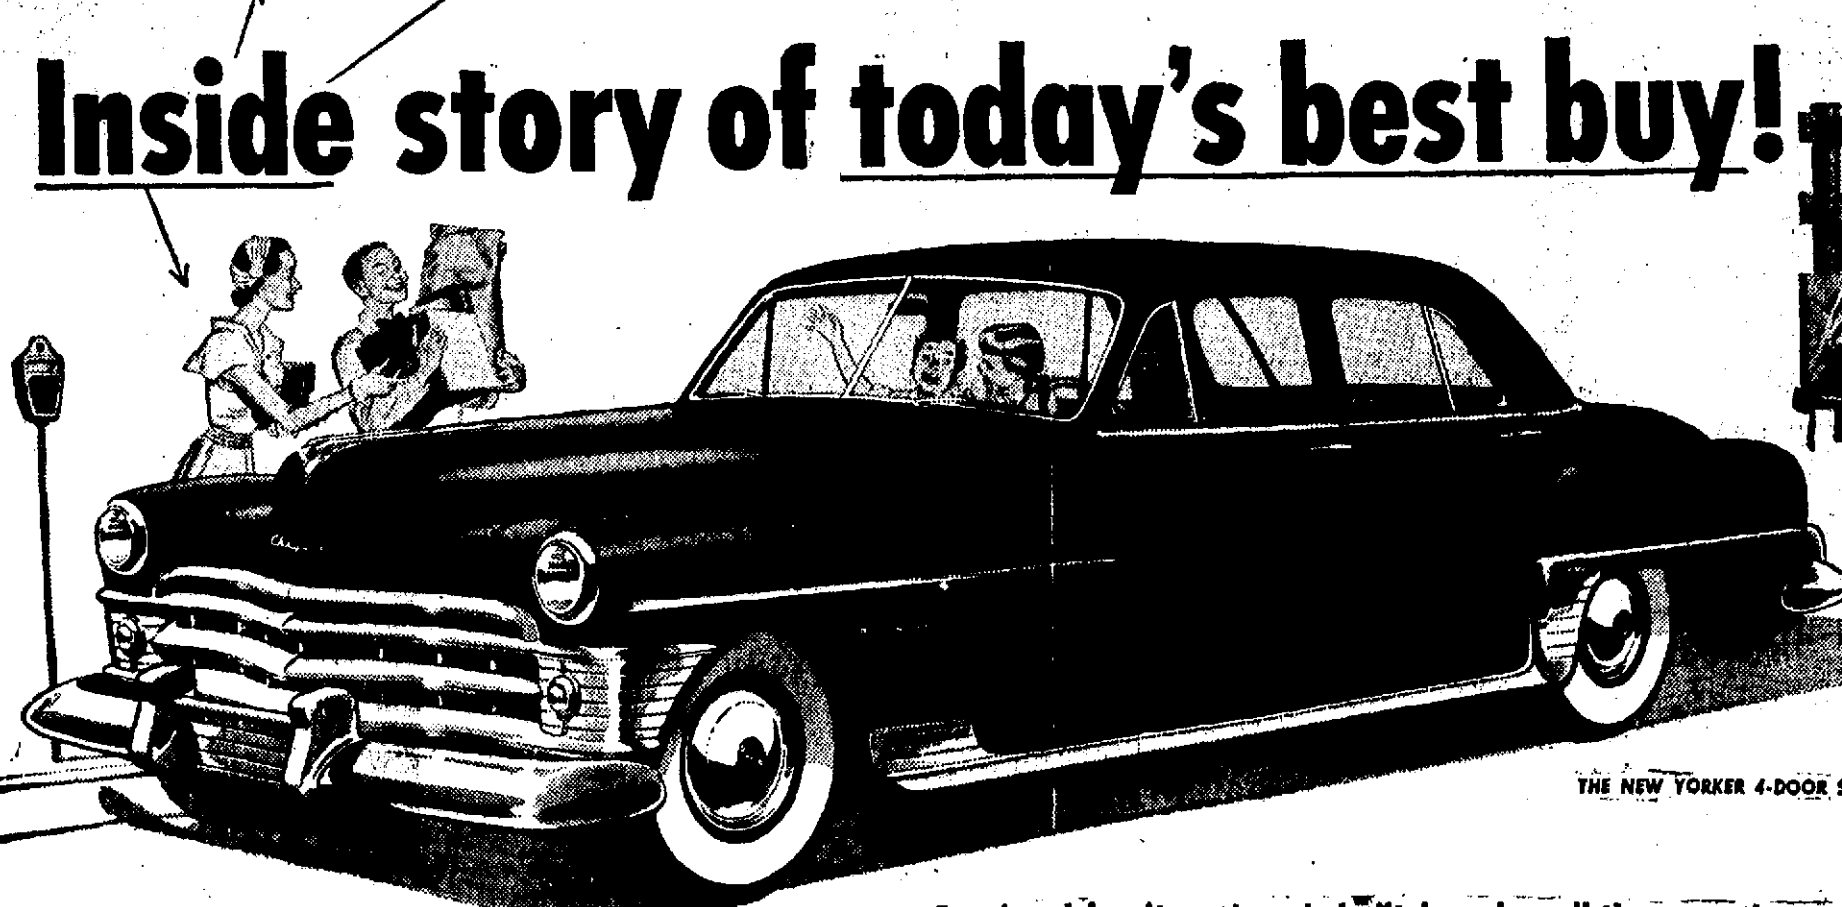

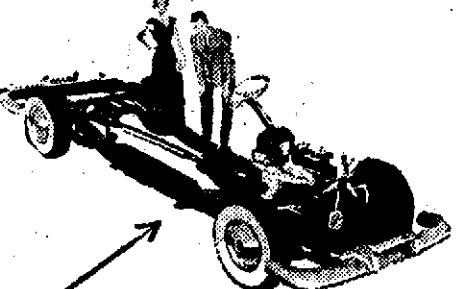

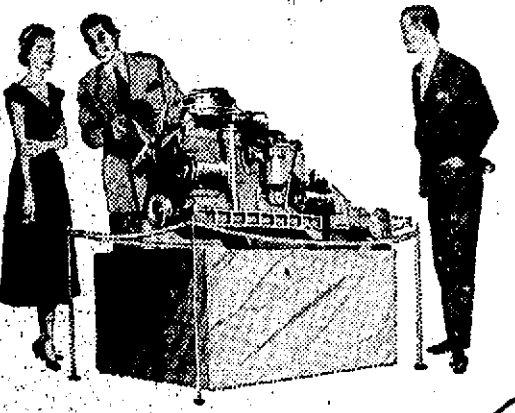

Mayor and City Council
Constables
Justices of the Peace
Juvenile Courts

In the same ad, my opponent says "I have tried to conduct my race without any mud slinging . . . but the past few days rumors are afloat." Claud Sutton has not only TRIED but he HAS conducted his race without mud slinging or rumors on his part. He shall finish it in the same manner.

Never shall I be any prouder of any one thing than this: While I was in the hospital recovering from an emergency operation my friends carried on my campaign and the people of this County gave me enough votes to lead the ticket in a three-man race. From all the reports and calls from over the County the majority tomorrow will be even greater. . . .
